

What is claimed is:

1. A method for use in managing resources for IP networking, the method comprising:

- adding a field to an operating system kernel software procedure, the field
- 5   referencing a virtual router context; and
- modifying packet processing software code to cause the packet processing software code to execute in accordance with the virtual router context.